HOUSE BUILDERS, LOOK TO YOUR INTEREST.

READ THE FOLLOWING:
June 26, 1871.

I, Aaron C. Beadle, four years ago, bought the Phoenix White Lead and boiled oil for my house, and I do hereby testify that the above point did not wear at all, but did within one year rub off the Lead did not appear to have any body, nor any lasting qualities whatever.
I make this statement without prejudice or bias against any person whatever.

I am acquainted with and fully corroborate the above statement in every particular, knowing the facts in the case to be just as stated, and would say in addition, that I, the same year Mr. Beadle bought his paint, bought of Mr. Conrad Cook sufficient Pure White Lead and raw oil, to paint my house, and I now testify that my paint stood the weather fine, did not rub off, and was hard and glossy last fall, when my house burned down.
I make this statement unsolicited by Mr.
Cook, and without any ill-feeling against any person whatever.

"Honor to Whom Honor is Due."

The Terra Haute Express of the 17th Inst. has a two-column leader on the "Services of Senator Morton," wherein lavish but not undeserved praise is showered on our ex-Governor. In all that is said touching the distinguished "services" of our Senator during the rebellion, we heartily concur, and the difficulties and merits of his administration are so forcibly presented and vindicated, and the encomium hestowed so eloquent and just, that we have gladly transferred all this portion of the article to our columns. But our contemporary, in sketching the "political services" of his favorite, is not (it seems to us) so happy or truthful. Adding to the return of Gov. Morton from the "genial climate of Italy," in 1868, (an innuendo, braving "all the perils and prostrating effects of a stormy ocean voyage," for the good of the party), and his famous (and indeed powerful) speech in Masonic Hall—the "general order," at the banquet for the "coming battle"—the "Zephyr" says:

"He has been the first always, to declare the issues of party conflicts, and to lead the way in forming the line of battle upon them. He did it in 1864, in 1866, and again in 1868."

Now we respectfully but squarely traverse this statement, because the statements are not according to history, and secondly, because the claim does injustice to some of the truest, bravest men in our party.

The Senator was not the "first" to define, declare and defend the "issues" which now underlie the Republican platform. In September, 1866, in his unfortunate Richmond speech, he declared the issues of the campaign, and was immediately taunted with Johnstonism, and still later he argued that the national debt might be legally "paid" in paper promises, and for a time certainly winked at it (if he did not favor) the Pen-dletonian greenback heresy. In fact he conquered the "Republican" platform, and the "Zephyr" sticks up his back and lifted his into a stouter, better Radicalism.

Just here we bethink ourselves of a reminiscence which may be worth relating. In January, 1867, during the session of the Legislature, and about four or five months after Mr. Morton's Richmond deliverance, Gov. W. A. Jackson spoke in the Senate chamber at Indianapolis. He had an audience worthy of the man, the occasion, and the message he had to deliver. In his masterly speech he stated, developed and proclaimed the "issues" which are now fundamental principles of the color men, and the honest payment of the public debt, especially the former. He declared that the time was high at hand when the Republicans must openly accept and firmly maintain these "issues." He carried a host of listeners with him, for we were mostly advanced Republicans. But among the chiefs of our lost shock their heads in doubt, or uttered their voices in fierce dissent. The step was too bold, even if in the right direction.
It was imprudent to "spring those issues." Julian was sincere and able, but "fanatical" and "impractical," he was a fault-finder and "common scold," and his followers a set of daring glibness, who were always riding over the party discipline. Such was the greeting and criticism accorded to one who was really leading the way in "forming that line of battle" on which the Republicans have achieved their prodigious triumphs, and on which we expect to fight the campaign of 1872.

We are not reproaching Senator Morton because he chose to keep up or behind the main body, and did not march abreast with Julian and those other gallant spirits who were ever at the front and in the thickest of the fray. Perhaps it was fittest that the commanding general should take his stand in the center or in the rear of the column. But no man, however high in rank or illustrious his services, ought to be awarded that which belongs to others.

"Honor to whom honor is due."—La terre Herald.

Reform appears to be the gratifying epitaph of the day, and the lesson of political wisdom is penetrating the whole people. The Rings that have been robbing the people all over the country, under every convenient party name, have been dealt with unsparingly, since New York set an example, which has been followed by Chicago, Cincinnati, Indiana, South Carolina, and other plundered cities and States.
While it is about the people seem desirous to make the reform as complete as possible, and hence hints have been given which the members of several legislatures have found it convenient to heed, to the effect that legislators are employed and paid by the people to attend to public business, and during six days of each week, and so we see during the session of the Legislature, and coming together again at the usual hour on Monday. For many years past most of our State Legislatures have habitually adjourned every Friday to meet again Tuesday, giving but four days service for a week's salary, while in some of the States in order to do this it has been necessary to resort to a trick by which to evade a law restricting the length of adjournments—a most shameless example for the lawgivers to set, but one very common in more States than one. A better day seems dawning, however, and if it shall become the custom for every legislator to work for an honest week's pay, the result will be by no means the smallest reform accomplished by the force of an awakened public sentiment.—Hearth and Home.

The Republicans of Clay county met in convention at Brazil Saturday week. A full corps of delegates was appointed to the Republican State Convention. No instructions were given. Isaac Herr, editor of the Brazil "Miner," was elected chairman of the newly appointed County Executive Committee, and a resolution was unanimously adopted urging the Republicans of the county to give the "Miner" a hearty support.

Plain Talking.

The following paragraph from the New Albany Tribune, the new Republican paper in the second Congressional District, demands attention. In commenting on the selection of candidates by the Republican State Convention, the Tribune says:

"We must make some serious inquiry into other matters, and if such be found to come out of Congress with a vastly greater amount of money than the salary would produce, or, as some have, with immense amounts of public lands—more than matter how good the Republicanism may be, or what able speeches they have made, the State Convention should quietly pass them by."

"We know one man in this State who is prominently put forward for Governor, who, it is said, owns enough public lands to bring him $2,000,000 at $1.25 per acre—Our party cannot carry this load, and if the above report be true, we trust the Convention will consider the matter well before making that nomination."

The Tribune ought not to deal in insinuations. If there is a prominent Republican candidate guilty of the act indicated, it is due the Republican voters of the State that he be pointed out prior to the assembling of the Convention. It is proper to say that the people are sensitive on this subject, and the Republicans cannot afford to nominate a candidate for Governor, whose integrity and habits are not above suspicion. As a Republican paper, we do not propose to enter the coming campaign weighted down with a candidate whose integrity or habits we shall be compelled continually to defend or apologize for. We believe other papers in different parts of the State occupy a similar position. We know of but one man in the State, who is promi-nently put forward for Governor, who has had the opportunity of acquiring improperly the acres of public land, as insinuated by the Tribune.

All the interest we have in the selection of a candidate for Governor is to get a man in whom the people have confidence. We will not snub those for or against whom reputations or bad habits, if the Convention is so unwise as to choose a candidate allied with either or both of these weaknesses. We hope the Republican papers all over the State will be equally plain spoken.
It is high time that the usual claptrap about the most popular man and the strongest candidate with which party newspapers are usually filled just before State conventions, was discarded for a little plain talk, showing wherein candidates do—and especially do not deserve the party nomination.
—Evansville Journal.

"Brazil is Deceit."

The construction of the Cincinnati and Terre Haute Railroad must lead to the rapid development of this region, both in the erection of furnaces, rolling mills, foundries, etc. for the local consumption of these numerous colliers; and in the opening of new colliers for the supply of distant and widely spread markets. This region has superior advantages over Brazil as a dense manufacturing center, in an unfailing supply of water furnished by El river, that Brazil is deficient in this respect, and that no method has yet been devised to remedy this deficiency, are facts notorious to every one conversant with her industry.

As I have shown in a former letter, combines in an eminent degree, all the requisites for a manufacturing site; and if another Brazil is destined to spring up on the banks of El river, it will be no regret to her trade.—Prof. J. W. Foster.

The Way to Success.

Republicans who wish to see their party successful, should assist their home papers, strengthen the hands of the editors, contribute to the columns every item of local interest, endeavor to extend the circulation as far as possible, assist in disseminating Republican truths in every part of the political arena, and let us have no papers that will be a credit to them at home and abroad. They can accomplish more for the party in this manner than in any other manner. The next contest will be a hot one, and every Republican paper sent to a voter is a messenger of truth.
It will like bread cast upon the waters, and reap many days. Let every body take up this good work and endeavor to have a Republican newspaper in every home in the county.—Muncie Telegraph.

The Indianapolis Journal hopes that the State Convention will give no instructions to the delegates chosen to the National Convention, as to the Presidency. This would certainly be the wise course. With what propriety can a convention held in February instruct for choice of a President in June? The most nicely fixed-up political might be all over in a good deal less than four months. Delegates of the character of those who will be sent from this State will need no instructions to guard the best interests of the State and party. It will be much better for all constituted by the State have a clear field, and be left free and unembarrassed by any instructions, which might have perfectly represented, and yet would not at all represent their opinions by the time of the meeting of the convention. The possible nomination of Colfax to the Presidency is a specially good reason why there should be no specific instructions.—Lafayette Journal.

The Republican party is threatened, and told that it must nominate a man for Governor, or lose the Sixth District. In 1868 Tippecanoe voted for the nominee because his name was Orth; in 1870, Tippecanoe voted against the nominee because his name was not Orth. Now the party is informed that the candidate for Governor must be named Orth, or the District will again be a Democratic driver's victory. If such threats do not damn Orth, we shall always think he ought to be. If no Republican can be elected but Orth, then the sooner the Democrats elect a Governor the better.—Crawfords-ville Journal.

How a Town is Judged.

A short time ago we were requested by parties in the East to compile inquiries west to forward them our county papers, we did so and at the same time wrote them as encouraging as we consistently could. Here is their reply: "From the papers you send us we infer that your town is not a place of much business enterprise, as the advertisements are mostly from abroad."—Danville Indiana.

The Custom Houses and the President.

That the New York and New Orleans Custom Houses are sores upon the body politic is a fact that needs no argument to demonstrate. Investigations made within the last few years, including those now in progress, show that the New York Custom House is a sink of corruption, discreditable to the administration, demoralizing in its influence, and altogether a stench in the nostrils of the whole people. It is not worse now than formerly. It has not been improved by transferring its influence from one faction of the Republican party to the other. It would not have been better had not this transfer been made. It has always been a bad, indeed, that in speaking of its management there is scarcely an opportunity to use the degrees of comparison. Those who controlled it under the Crittenden management were as unscrupulous as those who now control it are probably fully as bad as their predecessors. It has been administered upon the principle that to the victors belong the spoils, and the object of the recipients of the enormous patronage has been to enrich themselves

1-17d Chairman Putnam Co. Cen. Com.

Special Notice.
Changes of advertisements must be handed in by 8 o'clock Monday morning to insure insertion the same week. New advertisements must come in by 12 o'clock Wednesday.
Marriage notices will be inserted for five cents a line. Breviary notices of deaths free.
Advertisements taken out before expiration of time will be charged schedule rates.
Official notices of political meetings will be charged to the persons ordering their insertion, at our regular advertising rates.
Announcements of candidates will be charged ten cents a line for the first insertion, and five cents a line for each additional insertion.

Greencastle city is reported assessed.

Common Pleas Court meets next Monday.

Charley Kiefer has bought Stanley's grocery.

A little daughter of Saul Merryweather is dangerously sick with spotted fever.

Rev. J. M. Hanna preached at Clayton on Sunday. He now preaches at that place monthly.

The Vandallia Road will return delegates from the Republican State Convention at one-fifth rates.

Four new nail machines are to be added to the Greencastle nail factory as soon as they can be procured.

J. W. Brown returned to Marshall, Missouri, Tuesday, after having spent a week with his friends in Putnam.

Snow fell to the depth of six inches Monday night. Wednesday morning the thermometer was at zero at sunrise.

The new bell on the Baptist church first proclaimed its presence to the citizens of Greencastle Saturday evening.

Dr. Tingley preached in the Junction School House Sunday. Hereafter preaching will take place there every two weeks.

W. M. C. Blake and his son George leave for New York city to-morrow, on business connected with the Equitable Life Insurance Company. They expect to be absent eight or ten days.

A correspondent at Cloverdale wants to know what black cat skins are worth. We refer him to Dick Bright. Briggs can answer for the kittens. He deals only in small skins.

Conductor Joseph Kemper, and Brakenmeyer Taylor and Phips, in charge of the freight train which recently collided with a passenger train on the New Albany road at twelve mile switch, have been discharged.

The New Albany road north of Greencastle has been blocked by the snow since Monday, so as to prevent the arrival of trains from that direction. The Wallace Sisters came from Crawfordsville yesterday in sleighs.

Prof. J. C. Ridpath lectures at Effingham, Illinois, to-night, and at Lawrenceburg to-morrow night. He has also been invited to lecture at Sullivan, and at Mason, Illinois. The Professor's lectures are entertaining and instructive to an unusual degree.

We have received from D. P. Faulds, Louisville, Ky., the following pieces of music: "The Stolen Kiss," a song, words by Ruthella Schultz, and music by Frank King. Also the song, "Write me, if only a line," the words by Con. T. Murphy, and music by Frederick B. Naylor. Each 35 cents, sent free by mail.

The Republicans of Putnam county will meet in Convention at the Court House next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. As it is the first convention held within two years, it will be of more than usual importance. Every Republican should be on hand promptly at that hour.

A farmer of Putnam county informed us the other day that if the railroad and machine shops proposition was successful in the coming election he would sell his farm, worth about $10,000, and come to this city, and jogget his means here.—Greencastle Journal.

Several new dwelling houses will be built in the vicinity of the Glass Works in the spring.—T. H. Gazette.
"Several new dwelling houses" could have been built in Greencastle if glass works had been located here; and they would have been occupied, too, thus bringing new customers for our merchants, additional children for our schools, and taxpayers to share public expenses. We have enough sandstone to run a dozen glass works for a century. Why not try one?—They pay every where else, and why not here? Wake up! Greencastle!

We learn that John Gilmore beat all our other insurance agents in insuring the life of Alexia when he passed through our city. The story goes that John waited at the South Depot from 4 o'clock A. M. until the Grand Duke's arrival, who assured him that his august father, the Emperor of the Russians, told him when last they parted, that if he passed through Greencastle he should, by all means call on John Gilmore and get his life insured. Call on Mr. Gilmore and examine a lock of the Duke's beautiful hair. It is the only one to be seen in the State.

The Presbyterian congregation met at the church Saturday to take action on the resignation of Dr. E. W. Fisk, the pastor, and it was unanimously accepted. Resolutions complimenting Dr. Fisk for the manner in which he had discharged his duties were also adopted, and a committee consisting of Joseph Allen, J. D. Fordyce and J. D. Stinson was appointed to procure a successor. Dr. Fisk has accepted the Presidency of Indiana Female College, and will hereafter give his entire time to the interests of that institution. He possesses rare qualifications for the work, and will undoubtedly make it a success.

Mrs. Livermore, as announced elsewhere, will lecture in this city on the evening of the 10th inst., on one of her most interesting subjects—"What shall we do with our daughters?" The Lyceum Magazine states that last season Mrs. Livermore had more engagements than any other woman in the country. Anna Dickinson alone excepted, and that she is the ablest forensic female orator. She is a scholar of the ripest culture and most varied acquirements. We anticipate a crowded house. The expenses will be heavy, but nevertheless the admission has been fixed at the popular price of fifty cents, without extra charge for reserved seats.

The proposed coal road from Indianapolis to the coal fields will probably run to Cataraug, passing through Cloverdale.—That region possesses immense mineral wealth, which this road, if built, will soon develop and utilize.

Communion services at the Presbyterian Church last Sabbath.

Mr. A. D. Lynch, of Shelbyville, a graduate of the University, visited Asbury Tuesday morning.

Ed. Hopkins' Junior speech was published in last week's Saturday Evening Mail.

Dr. Locke tied a matrimonial knot yesterday for a lady and gentleman at Asbury.

Superintendent Sherly must dismiss Sabbath-school a little earlier, or be interrupted by students leaving to attend lecture.

F. M. Bovard has been assisting A. R. Julian in conducting a series of revival meetings, in the pastoral charge of the latter, at Bowling Green and vicinity.

Dr. Bowman lectured at College Chapel Sabbath afternoon. Subject, "Science and Scientists." He was unusually smiling, and indulgent in the extreme to the drowsily disposed.

The Twenty-secondists are on the quiet. We anticipate a good performance.

J. B. Van Buskirk discourses upon literary crimes and criticism.

J. E. Evans advocates Senator Trumbull's measures for retrenchment.

J. T. Albin would impress the importance of the "present." Less enthusiastic gestures would be more appropriate.

C. N. Johnson thinks that for a lady to eat with an imaginary fork for the sake of politeness is rather inconvenient, to say the least of it. His peculiar up-and-down-oblong-lateral motion in going to and from the platform is probably as incongruous to others as his "imaginary fork" is to himself.

L. F. Cole has accepted the position offered him in the State Reform School, and entered upon his duties the first of the week. He is now "House Father" of that institution.

The protracted sessions of the Presbyterian Sabbath-school often prevent its members from attending lectures at College Chapel.

"Taint so!" The "Asbury" cottonists did not "honor" Hill's gallery with their presence, as stated last week. But on the next evening, at Mr. T. O. Allen's, a number of gay trippers tripped to their hearts' content.

The new year's privileges don't come exactly natural to all of the ladies.

The following extract from the diary of "Rev. Dinkey Phillips, late missionary to the heathen of Putnam county," is doubtless characteristic of the man:

About nine o'clock on Sunday morning we found the Baptist Sabbath-school singing, Mr. Radcliff, chorister, and Orville Earl, organist. It seemed that the school did not engage in the singing and general exercises with enough interest and enthusiasm. They ought to sing with more vim, and discuss the lesson with such earnestness as would make it necessary for the classes to scatter over the house to avoid interrupting each other, instead of clustering about the middle seats and talking in suppressed tones. This change is possible, for when the Superintendent, E. S. Hopkins, closed the recitations and commenced the concluding exercises by calling for the verses committed during the week, a new life seemed to be instantly developed; all was eagerness, and nearly every scholar and all the teachers were prepared. Then followed the monthly report, showing the absent and tardy marks, number of new scholars, number of verses committed, amount of missionary contributions, &c., &c., all very creditable to the school. There are seven classes, each having its title and motto. Both pastor Gillespie and L. F. Cole made short addresses. "The Young Reaper," a pretty little semi-monthly, affords the scholars its share of reading matter.

The Faculty has decided that the irrepressible Sophs shall not be repressed in any degree whatever. They all—only about forty-two—are to be heard from at the close of the term.

Fifteen persons were at the Roberts Chapel altar last night. Rev. Mr. Gee is indisposed on account of his protracted efforts, and his place will be supplied to-night by Dr. Bowman. Meetings are held nightly, and each morning at 9 o'clock. The public is earnestly invited to attend.

Homer F. Frost, conductor on the Jeffersonville Railroad, and Miss Flora Legato, niece of Mrs. E. T. Keightley of this city, were married at Roberts Chapel yesterday afternoon in the presence of a large assembly of invited friends, by Elder W. F. Black, of Indianapolis, assisted by Rev. W. R. Parsons of Ohio. A number of the officials of the Jeff Road, headed by Superintendent Scott, came over in a special car to attend the wedding. The presents to the bride were numerous and costly, among them a $350 solid silver tea set, from Mr. Frost's brother railroad officials, and a $100 sewing machine. The party left for Louisville on the 4:48 train. Thence they go to New Orleans on a bridal tour, after which they will return to Louisville, designing to make that city their future residence. We wish them all the joys imaginable on their bright sunny way.

The monument erected over the remains of D. C. Stunkard, in the cemetery near Brazil, is said to be the most elegant and costly in Clay county.

We see in some of our exchanges the name of Prof. O. H. Smith as a candidate for nomination to the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction. While we very much doubt whether Prof. Smith can afford to take the office at its present pay, we do not doubt that he would make a good officer, if elected.—Ind. Chris. Advocate.

The Quincy correspondent of the New York Advocate writes thus of the son of Rev. H. J. Lacey, of Greencastle: "Prof. J. W. Lacey, a recent graduate of Asbury University, is not only a Christian gentleman, but an accomplished and highly successful professor. He will rank high in the educated world."

Major O. J. Smith, editor of the Terre Haute Mail, writes as follows in regard to Mrs. Livermore:

MY DEAR SIR: You ask me about Mrs. Livermore. She is the most popular woman speaker, without doubt, in America, and this is saying much for her, as feminine oratory has its ablest and best representatives in this country. She is scholarly and profound, witty and sarcastic, and, withal, she is complete mistress of that higher kind of eloquence which stamps her as the born orator. The best part of her lectures, as in the speeches of most women, is her subtle sympathy, ever prominent, with the pure and good.

Very truly,
O. J. SMITH.

From the Lansing (Mich.) Republican, February 1st, 1872:

The fourth lecture of the regular course was given on Tuesday evening, by Mrs. A. Livermore of Boston. Her subject was "What shall we do with our daughters?" It attracted a vast throng of ladies, and was well received.

Stepping upon the platform at 8:15, having had no sleep for two days, and only one regular meal, she began her lecture at 8:30, and continued for two hours and ten minutes, and many with whom we have talked consider it the ablest and best lecture ever delivered in Lansing. Calm, collected, logical, and eloquent, she attracted every listener.

Mrs. Livermore's advice in relation to the training of women of the coming generation, and their duties in the future, will be more fully given in our next issue. It is a most timely and valuable lecture, and one which should be read by every woman of the community.

Read, also, the following opinions of leading journals:

She is universally acknowledged to be the ablest woman orator in the New England States, and, as a lecturer, has attained the highest rank in professional circles. Her appearance on the platform.—Boston Herald.

William Lloyd Garrison said of her first speech in Boston, that it was a speech worth a voyage to Chicago to hear, or going to Chicago to hear.

The Chicago Tribune says of Mrs. Livermore: "The Chicago Tribune of the Saturday with plenty of brains and judgment."

In person, Mrs. Livermore is tall and of fine physique, with a head which, in its physiognomy, is a rare example of intellect. She has a clear, ringing voice, and can be distinctly heard in all parts of the hall.

GREENCASTLE BANNER.

Strong Words from a Grant Senator.
Treatment of Mr. Sumner.

Correspondence of the Green Castle Banner.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.
There is a strange condition of affairs in the Senate and some of the strongest friends of President Grant which that body contains are beginning to chafe at the arrogance which a handful of men there assume and exhibit on all occasions.

One of the most prominent among the senatorial supporters of President Grant, and one who has never been classed among dissatisfied Republicans, but is now and has long been in favor of the re-nomination of Gen. Grant, said in substance, to a party of friends, a few evenings since, that "if it were not for the risk of creating a split in the party on the eve of a nominating convention, a dozen Senators of long standing, and high standing, would rise in their places and denounce and resent the arrogance and insults which Conkling, Carpenter, Edmunds, and others daily heaped upon the Republican minority."

This Senator went on to say, in substance, that the arrogance of these men was becoming unbearable, that none of them had any standing in the party till its success was assured, and that the manner in which they now banded themselves together, and cracked a party lash of their own manufacture in the Senate Chamber around the ears of men who were veterans in the anti-slavery cause long before these men were Republicans, was little short of infamous.

Gen. Grant to-day has no firmer friend or more open supporter than the Senator who gave utterance to the views indicated above.

The last instance of the style of manners which the men thus alluded to have adopted was presented on Friday last, when a vote was taken upon a proposition of Senator Sumner to secure civil rights to colored citizens.

There certainly are grounds for honest differences of opinion regarding the late measure presented by the Senator from Massachusetts. But upon the claims of Charles Sumner to be treated with decency upon the floor of the Senate whenever he sees fit to support a proposition which is in the line of the great battle which he has waged so long for human rights, there is no room for question. The record shows the disgraceful treatment which he received. The resolutions for adjournment on May 24th being under consideration, the following occurred:

"Mr. Sumner—Now I move to strike out all after the enacting clause of the resolution and insert:

"That in closing the issues of the late rebellion, and in securing reconciliation among the people of the United States, justice should precede generosity; that we should be just to colored fellow-citizens, always faithful to the republic, but now suffering under disabilities, before we are generous to rebels; that in the removal of disabilities we could begin with colored fellow-citizens, but since the removal of rebel disabilities is now pressed, it is essential that justice to colored fellow-citizens should accompany this generosity so that the equal rights of colored fellow-citizens shall not be postponed to the amnesty of rebels, but the two shall go together and be associated in the same national statute.

Resolved, That Congress will take no step toward a final adjournment until the issues of the rebellion are closed and reconciliation is secured, so far as the same can be done by act of Congress.

Mr. Hamlin—Mr. President that is a very important and solemn amendment, and as we ought not to vote upon it without great deliberation, I rise to inquire whether it would be in order to sing "Old Hundred" before we vote [Laughter].

Mr. Sumner—The Senator from Maine (Mr. Hamlin) had better lead off, sir. I do not believe that the rights of the colored people of the country ought to be trilled with in this Chamber. There is a time that they can sing—at the ballot-box.

Mr. Carpenter—They can't sing until after the 20th of May. [Laughter.]

Mr. Sumner—I do know that I plead for the absent, the disabled, the insulted. I am alone. I hope I shall not always be so, but I have been alone in other days. I make this sincere effort to press upon the Senate its duty. I could not do otherwise without feeling that I had neglected a duty.

Mr. Conkling—Question.
And so, in the midst of derisive laughter, Mr. Conkling's insulting cries of "question," and Messrs. Hamlin's and Carpenter's impious jokes, Mr. Sumner was swept aside, while the shameful conduct went on.
